The Book of Ruth Onstage: A Theatrical Midrash

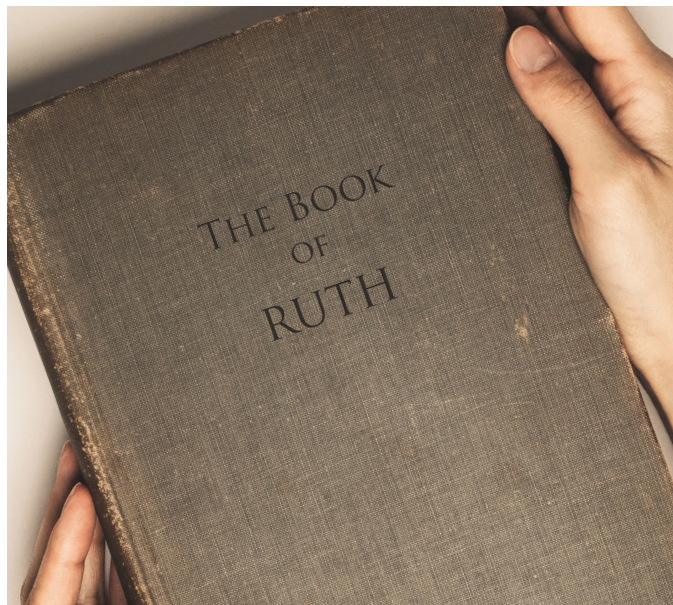

Wednesday, January 17 at 7:00 p.m.

Instructor: Rabbi Ethan Seidel

Rabbi Ethan Seidel will offer a one-session look at the dramatic and romantic Book of Ruth, based on his newly written play drawn from the text's Book 4. The class will include a performance of the 15-minute play, an examination of the play's sources (in commentary as well as the text itself) and a discussion of the issues raised by this haunting story.

Ethan Seidel has been the rabbi at Tifereth Israel since 1992. He is a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary, holds degrees in mathematics and music, and sets aside time each day to expand his knowledge of Jewish texts and commentaries.

Living in Israel Today

Instructor: Tzachi Levy

Jan. 24 and Feb. 14 at 7:00 p.m.

Jan. 24—The Modern Kibbutz: Dreams and Realities

Feb. 14—Day to Day on the Gaza Border

The kibbutz was one of the Zionist movement's epic projects, offering the example of a social and caring community even before Israel's birth as a state. In the late 1970s and early 1980s, the kibbutz movement experienced a deep economic and ideological crisis that led to significant changes—both in the structure of the kibbutz and in its moral strength. What is the relevance of the kibbutz movement today? Tzachi Levy, a thirteenth-generation native Israeli and the senior shaliach (Israeli cultural representative) of the Jewish Federation of the Greater Washington Area, has lived on many kibbutzim and helped establish one, Kibbutz Eshbal.

In these two sessions, he will discuss his generation's experiences in the kibbutz movement and his personal experience living in a kibbutz on the border with Gaza.

Tzachi Levy has served as shaliach in Pittsburgh, PA and in South Africa. His strong family roots and Zionist youth movement education were and are his motivation for working in the Jewish world.

Both sessions: Adas, JSC members $25, others $35 (W-1a, W-1b)

With "Living in Israel Today: What's Happening at the Kotel? (See page 6-March 7): JSC, Adas members $40, others $55 (W-1a, W-1b, W-1c)

Third Annual Community Tu B'Shevat Seder

Wednesday, January 31, 7:00 -9:00 p.m.

Leaders: Rabbi Gilah Langner and Susan Barocas

Tu B'Shevat, the New Year of the Trees, is Judaism's premier environmental holiday and one that speaks to us clearly today. Celebrate with us at the third annual JSC Tu B'Shevat Seder at Adas Israel. We'll connect to the Tree of Life in each of the Four Worlds of Jewish mysticism and join in a community art project. Come taste of the four types of fruits and seven species of foods from the land of Israel, attuned to earth's rhythms and cycles. On a practical level, we'll be offering advice on how to switch from coal and nuclear-powered electrical energy in your home to renewable wind power. Let's share another memorable Seder evening!

Gilah Langner is the rabbi of Shirat HaNefesh in Chevy Chase, MD, and Kol Ami Congregation in Arlington, VA, and a meditation leader at the Jewish Mindfulness Center of Washington at Adas Israel. Susan Barocas is a writer, teacher, chef, filmmaker and organizer of special events. She was founding director of the Jewish Food Experience.

The Balance of Buddhism: What Everyone Should Know (Part II)

Feb. 7 at 7:00 p.m.

Instructor: Matt Regan

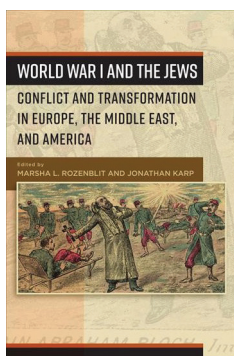

Back by popular demand, this class can be taken as a stand-alone or as sequel to the fall introductory session. Buddhism is a complex spiritual tradition with over two-and-a-half millennia of history. Its influence reaches millions of Buddhists and countless more non-Buddhists in the modern world, and has deeply shaped the cultures of Asia. We will continue exploring the outline of Buddhist history, philosophy, and practice to better understand this complex and diverse tradition.

Matt Regan is the secretary of the International Buddhist Committee of Washington DC, an umbrella group for local Buddhist organizations dedicated to inter-Buddhist and interfaith cooperation. Matt served on the organizing committee for the Dalai Lama's 2011 visit to Washington and completed seminary training in the Taego Order of Korean Zen.

Book Talk: World War I and the Jews: Conflict and Transformation in Europe, the Middle East, and America. Edited by Marsha Rozenblit and Jonathan Karp

Speaker: Marsha Rozenblit

Feb. 7, 8:15 p.m.

World War I had a dramatic impact on the Jews of Europe, the Middle East, and America. This class will explore how Jews used the war to demonstrate their patriotism and loyalty, to combat anti-Semitic myths about Jewish cowardice, and to advance particular Jewish agendas. The strengthening of nationalism during the war and the redrawing of the map of Europe and the Middle East in its aftermath had profound effects on Jewish life, fostering more modern and secular currents while strengthening international Jewish solidarity and Jewish nationalism—both Zionist and non-Zionist.

Marsha L. Rozenblit is the Harvey M. Meyerhoff Professor of Jewish History at the University of Maryland, College Park and is also the author of Reconstructing a National Identity: The Jews of Habsburg Austria During World War I (2001).

A Taste of Wine and Text, Part I: Purim

Instructor: Norman Shore

Feb. 14 at 8:15 p.m.

How can we best prepare for the upcoming Purim holiday, with its well-known indulgences? By studying texts about drinking, of course! Starting with the Megillah we'll learn merry and sober texts on the dangers of drinking. How much to drink on Purim? As much as King Ahasuerus? Themes will include wine's perils and prohibitions and its association with moral degeneration, assimilation, idolatry, stereotyping, irreverence and joy. (For joy, redemption and religious uplift, see Part II: Pesach, March 21.)

Norman Shore is a teacher in Washington's many Jewish communities and a founder and former president of the Jewish Study Center.

Living in Israel Today:

What's Happening at the Kotel?

Instructor: Michele Sumka

March 7 at 7:00 p.m.

The Kotel, or Western Wall, once represented common ground for all Jews, or so it seemed. But political disagreements have torn apart that onetime consensus. Many American Jews were outraged when a promised compromise fell apart that would have guaranteed pluralist, mixed-gender prayer at the Wall. Instead, the debate continues—and occasionally erupts. The instructor, a longtime member of Washington Friends of Women of the Wall, discusses recent developments and the outlook for resolution, if any.

Michele Sumka has been a participant in the Rosh Hodesh services at the Kotel a number of times, starting in December 1990. The most memorable incident was in July 2010, when she tried to help Anat Hoffman, the Chair of the Board, hold on to the Women of the Wall Torah, which was being grabbed from her by the police. She joined with other DC women in December 2012 to establish Washington friends of Women of the Wall.

Untangling the Psalms

Instructor: Amy Schwartz

March 7, 14 at 8:15 p.m.

The 150 religious poems that make up the Book of Psalms are both strange and familiar, forming the backbone of our liturgy and of Christian liturgy as well. The metaphors are tangled, but the emotional states they express are as immediate now as when they were written. We will read, discuss and savor these texts and compare the versions that have come down through the centuries. Readings in English.

Amy Schwartz is opinion editor of Moment Magazine and president of the Jewish Study Center.

Pollution, Climate Change, and Us: What Is Our Responsibility?

Instructor: Rabbi Aaron Alexander

March 14 at 7:00 p.m.

Scientists tell us that power plant pollution and car exhaust contain toxic chemicals such as mercury, fine particulates, and gases that cause sicknesses to people around the world, including lung cancer, birth defects, and more—not to mention carbon pollution and climate change.

Wednesdays at Adas Israel Congregation

2850 Quebec St. NW (Metro: Cleveland Park—Red Line)

Co-Sponsored with Adas Israel Congregation

Jan. 17, 24, 31, Feb. 7, 14, 21, Mar. 7, 14, 21 at 7:00 & 8:15 p.m.

As Jews, how should we respond to these facts? What do the Sages say about responsibility for actions that may cause harm to others? Secular law may permit these activities even if the pollution is toxic and harmful to other people, but should there be an additional understanding of our responsibility as Jews? And what about the other side?

Using electricity in our homes and shuls delivers great value, and we drive our cars for important and useful purposes. How does that factor into the equation?

Rabbi Aaron Alexander will lead the class through sources that put these questions in context and help us find our own informed answers. Adas Israel recently created a “climate team” of congregants with relevant expertise who may join the class and provide background.

Rabbi Aaron Alexander is a senior rabbi at Adas Israel.

Book Talk: The Blessings in Conflict by Betsy Strauss

March 21 at 7:00 p.m.

Why does the Torah—a path to peace; a tree of life—begin with stories of violence and family conflict? Why does the Talmud preserve the arguments about the law that were rejected as well as those that prevailed? What does Judaism add to resolving or living with our everyday conflicts? The Blessings in Conflict reviews stories from the Torah and Talmud and suggests answers to these questions.

Betsy Strauss is an attorney and mediator. Her interest in resolving conflict has kept her out of the courtroom and led to certification as a professional mediator. This book grew out of the thesis she wrote at Hebrew College as part of her Masters in Jewish Studies degree. Betsy is a mother, grandmother, and active member of Adas Israel Congregation.

A Taste of Wine and Text, Part II: Passover

Instructor:
Norman Shore

March 21 at 8:15 p.m.

As spring arrives, so does the Passover Seder—with its four cups, Elijah and spilling the wine as we recite the plagues. The Haggadah text will lead us to wine's ritual uses at the Seder and also on Shabbat, holidays, simchas and sacrifices, and its connection with themes of redemption and celebration. (For themes of debauchery, idolatry and politics, see Part I: Purim, February 14.)

Norman Shore (see above) is a teacher in the Washington-area Jewish community and a former Jewish Study Center president.

Talmud Unwrapped - Clergy-Led

Rabbi Amy Schwartzman

From Klezmer to Tin Pan Alley - Cultural

Instructor: Seth Kibel

Klezmer, literally "tool of song," is the secular folk music of the Jews of Central and Eastern Europe. In the first decades of the 1900s, this music flourished not only in the Old World but also in the immigrant community of New York City. There, the sounds of the European "fiddler on the roof" mixed with the sounds of early jazz and Tin Pan Alley. The result was a quintessentially American sound.

This course will trace the history and evolution of this music, from the Old World to the New, up until the present day and the modern klezmer revival. Audio recordings and live performances from the instructor will make this class as exciting as the music itself.

Seth Kibel is one of the Mid-Atlantic's premier woodwind specialists, wowing audiences on saxophone, clarinet, and flute. He is the featured performer with The Alexandria Kleztet, Bay Jazz Project, Music Pilgrim Trio, The Natty Beaux, and more. He has won many awards, and the song "New Waltz" from his latest album "No Words" was the Grand Prize winner of 2016 Mid-Atlantic Song Contest (MASC), sponsored by the Songwriters' Association of Washington (SAW). www.sethkibel.com
